As far as dressing for the office is concerned, confidence tends to lead to, well, more confidence. The best work clothes for men help you put your best foot forward. There's a sense of style to our favorite business casual work clothes brands, but also something deeper at play. Whether stepping up to nail a presentation, lead a meeting, or simply cruise through a taxing list of 9-to-5 demands, how you dress can go a long way. The best work clothes for men are angled toward comfort, toward capable looks, and toward meeting the office dress code appropriately (and then some).

Depending on where you work, you'll need more than one go-to look: From dress shirts to blazers, stretch pants, accessories, and even suiting, the best men's work clothes elevate your daily wardrobe in tasteful fashion. Our list also features popular business casual brands like Mizzen+Main and Twillory, which have all been tried and tested by longtime style editors.

Todd Snyder

Todd Snyder

There's a tricky balance to strike when dressing for the office: You're aiming for both respectability and a sense of unique personal style. Todd Snyder's refined American menswear does a bit of both, with a selection of tasteful, elegant sport coats, suits, and dress shirts that are both classic and modern, the perfect way to show you mean business — think of it as accessible luxury you can wear to the office.

Our editors' picks:

A crisp light blue dress shirt works in any season and with plenty of different shades when it comes to tailoring, be it a navy suit or a khaki blazer. This shirt also happens to boast a flattering, tailored fit and a collar that frames the face while pairing with a classic tie.

A two-button blazer is a timeless style move that works in just about any office, any day of the week, any time of year. Todd Snyder's version offers a crisp look in seasonless Italian cotton, adding a hint of luxury to your everyday outfits.

The right pair of dress pants can pair with just about anything in your tailored wardrobe, from a V-neck sweater and Oxford shirt to your favorite navy blazer. The wool-cotton blend and modern tailored fit of this pair make them utterly perfect for daily office wear.

Indochino

Amir Ismael/Insider

While suiting at the office isn't quite as much the norm as it used to be, it pays off to find a reliable source for all your tailoring needs, and Indochino is the star of the show in that regard. The company makes it easier than ever to shop for a crisp, perfectly fitted suit online (or in its showrooms, if you could use a tune-up on your measurements). There's a wide variety of colors, styles, patterns, and looks to be found at Indochino, whether your office dress code leans more conservative or more modern — the company also makes shirts, pants, blazers, outerwear, and more.

Our editors' picks:

Getting tailored clothing may have once cost an arm and a leg, but Indochino is making custom suits relatively accessible.

This pair is made-to-measure and can be customized with interchangeable pockets, pleats, and button details.

Nothing feels quite as bespoke as a custom-made suit. The startup Indochino makes that gift a bit more achievable and a lot less expensive.

Public Rec

Public Rec

These days, the lines are a bit more blurred when it comes to dressing for the office. Some office dress codes are becoming more lax, some aren't requiring employees to venture into the office nearly as much, and nearly every space allows for more flexibility in terms of comfort and casually cool style. Public Rec is the menswear brand for the office in these times, offering supremely comfortable yet polished stretch polos, exceptionally soft stretch pants with the cut of a dress trouser, and even soft stretch tees you can rock under a blazer.

Our editors' picks:

Athleisure brand Public Rec just made the most versatile polo shirt ever — the Go-To Polo.

Check price at Public Rec

With pant and inseam sizes, Public Rec's Gamechanger Jogger is an elevated take on sweatpants that will appeal to more than athletes.

Designed for all occasions, the Go-To Crew has the right amount of stretch for day-long comfort.

Suitsupply

Asim Ismael/Business Insider

Recall what we said about dressing with confidence for the office — confidence and variety are all part of the equation. And for menswear that leans a bit more bold, but just as useful for when you need to look sharp in the boardroom, Suitsupply nearly has the market cornered. They're yet another useful online resource for easy-to-buy men's suiting in a variety of fabrics, along with all the accessories you need in case your office calls for you to suit up frequently. And either way, you'll look remarkably sharp, no matter how stressful deadlines might be.

Our editors' picks:

With a name like SuitSupply, you'd better excel at some of the best suits for men, and this timeless Havana option fits the bill nicely. The Dark Grey color makes this wearable with plenty of different dress shirts and ties for formal days at the office (post-work functions included).

For an incredibly elevated take on Casual Friday, opt for a well-fitting polo in a rich, neutral color. This one is well-suited for the office, especially in a soft and breathable cotton and silk blend.

The ability to mix and match one pair of pants with the rest of your workday wardrobe staples is crucial in terms of value and even personal style. Navy chinos, especially in a handsome tailored cut from SuitSupply, are as good as it gets for endless wearability.

Buck Mason

Buck Mason

Dressing for the office with some of the best work clothes brands can mean plenty of different things based on where your office is located, how many times a week you head into the office, and if your office is a little more flexible. For meeting those shifting demands in a polished yet more laidback fashion, look to the rugged-meets-refined Americana menswear of Buck Mason. For expertly crafted Oxford shirts, work-ready chinos, and even affordable, soft-shouldered jackets and chinos, this brand perfectly bridges the gap between past and present.

Our editors' picks:

You can feel the quality of the Buck Mason Pima Curved Hem Tee the first time you wear it, and you'll enjoy the shirt for years to come.

Inspired by vintage denim, the Full Saddle Jeans are made with heavyweight selvedge and feature a high rise and straight legs.

The Oxford shirt is an all-time American style classic, so it makes perfect sense that Buck Mason would make a fine example of the style. This shirt pairs as well with a navy blazer as it does on its own, sleeves rolled up with crisply cut chinos.

Twillory

Twillory

Dealing with the demands of a commute and office life can be stressful — the menswear you're rocking shouldn't stress you out, though. It should move with you rather than against you, it should meet the demands of hot (or cold) weather, and it certainly shouldn't feel restrictive. Twillory's focus on performance menswear, which started with stretch shirting, emphasizes comfort and crisp looks all the way.

Our editors' picks:

The Advancer features a blue checked pattern and all the stretch you'll need in a dress shirt.

Twillory goes as lightweight and airy as possible with this outrageously stretchy blazer in a patent-pending, four-way stretch fabric. It also comes in three lengths and plenty of sizes for every body type.

Mizzen+Main

Mizzen+Main

For the past decade, Mizzen+Main has been outfitting guys for occasions, more formal and casual, with tailored performance and comfort in mind — both are key tenets to focus on as you dress for the office. After all, the right performance dress shirt can go a long way, whether layered on its own, underneath a stretch cotton sweater, or styled with a blazer. Mizzen+Main shirts (and more) are suited for each of those wearing occasions, and then some.

Our editors' picks:

This Mizzen + Main dress shirt boasts a wide range of fits, colors, pattern options, and effective performance technology.

The Leeward silhouette is the style that arguably put Mizzen+Main on the map, with a dizzying array of colors and patterns available in both long and short-sleeve designs for year-round wear. The smooth woven fabric makes this shirt ideal for everyday wear at the office, while its short-sleeve variations are a polished option for summer barbecues aplenty.

Ministry of Supply

Ministry of Supply

Is it possible to merge scientific technology and next-level research with the world of menswear? Ministry of Supply certainly thinks so, and it's resulted in a line of polished, crisply designed clothes with performance features and office-ready style, as the company tests everything from stretch to odor resistance. If feeling your best also goes hand in hand with looking your best, Ministry of Supply might just have perfected that formula.

Our editors' picks:

Some of the coolest technology on the planet – it's 19 times more breathable than cotton pique fabric – powers this supremely high-performing, polished dress shirt.

Kinetic's warp-knit fabric offers radical stretch for uninhibited motion, with a sharp look built to last through countless washes and wears.

YChroma Apparel

YChroma

In just a short period of time since its 2023 launch, YChroma Apparel has started to shift the way guys dress — fresh, colorful, more vibrant, and more confident, which includes its key customer base of established men looking to reinvent a wardrobe with a bit more flair and a modern-meets-classic touch. However, its fresh spin on the classics works for just about anyone. The results are eye-catching and refreshing, and many of its styles are certainly office-ready: Perfectly tailored trousers in rich colors, dress shirts that can be, well, dressed up or down, and flattering V-neck sweaters that make any guy look like he's in great shape.

Our editors' picks:

The Apparel Skyline Pants are an eye-catching take on classic men's dress pants.

Everlane

Everlane

It can be hard at times for a new brand to make waves when sticking to the classics — like Oxford shirting, slim chinos, and blazers. But Everlane has done that, and then some, disrupting the industry with transparent sourcing and production practices, focused all the while on minimal menswear that's perfectly office-ready. At fair prices, Everlane assuredly makes some of the best men's work clothes, and they often do it using sustainable fabrics and better-for-the-environment factory processes.

Our editors' picks:

Everlane is perhaps best known for its modern take on the sturdy Oxford shirt. This one uses organic cotton and can be worn easily on its own, sleeves rolled up, with olive chinos, or else beneath a navy blazer at the office.

Everlane designed its Uniform Collection to be mixed and matched seamlessly, and the approach certainly works with these stretch-filled, sleek chinos made for all-day comfort at the office and well beyond.

Bonobos

Amir Ismael/Business Insider

There's plenty of competition in this century when it comes to brands that have fundamentally changed the way guys dress, and that certainly includes how to dress for the office. In the world of men's pants, Bonobos perfected the fit and fabric of the chino, using an innovative curved waistband, better fabric, and playful colors. The company has since expanded deep into crisp dress shirts, expert tailoring, and office-ready pants and sweaters at accessible price points. For your 9-to-whenever grind, amp up your closet with Bonobos.

Mack Weldon

Mack Weldon

There's both an art and a science to dressing for the office, and to blending technical properties with standout good looks: Mack Weldon walks that tricky line handsomely with its stylish office clothing for men. The company takes the same technology that makes its boxers and boxer briefs a bestseller, and incorporates it into a range of office-approved stretch button-downs, performance pants, and even a knit blazer that feels as comfortable as a T-shirt. Once you try Mack Weldon's office menswear, you'll see why they're firmly one of the best work clothes brands for men.

Our editors' picks:

Powered by 37.5 Technology, the Mack Weldon 37.5 Oxford is designed to keep you cool, comfortable, and sweat-free during the workweek.

The Mack Weldon 18-Hour Jersey Crew Neck Undershirt is so comfortable you'll look for excuses to dress up just so you can layer it under your button-down.

Similar to garments worn by NASA, Olympic athletes, US Special Forces, Mack Weldon Silver Underwear adds pure silver to its Supima cotton to provide strong odor protection.

Its crisp dress shirts and timeless suiting are about as utterly timeless as it gets, and things get even better when you consider that the brand frequently offers sales and bundle deals on elegant dress shirts, suiting, and more.

Our editors' picks:

Not every office these days calls for suiting, but if you happen to encounter that dress code, put your best foot forward in an extremely comfortable, flattering stretch twill number with a classic tailored finish.
